The display, which is artistically arranged, shows a housewife weighing out the quantities of ingredients that she is using for her cooking, so as not to waste by over use.

In the background is an impressive colored poster, showing a quantity of fruit being carried in a basket by a young woman, while a little distance from the young woman can be seen a battle raging. The poster contains the words "Ammunition is food, don't waste it."

Another sign reads: Food—Buy it with thought. Cook it with care. Use less wheat and meat. Buy local food. Serve just enough. Eat what is left.

There are a number of other signs, all pertaining to the conservation of food.

A tray is shown, with cup and saucer, and plate, etc. On a little dish are two lumps of sugar and a small portion of butter. On the tray is a sign which reads as follows: Restaurant rules: Second portion ordered, five cents extra.

JAPAN AND U. S. IN FULL ACCORD

Agreement to Preserve the Open Door in China Reaffirmed and Unity of Purpose in the War Restated.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Nov. 6.—Japan and the United States have reaffirmed their determination to preserve the "Open door" in China. Japan is prepared to do everything in her power to promote "the suppression of Prussian militarism" and both nations have checked "a feeling of suspicion" according to practically identical notes exchanged between Viscount Ishii and Secretary of State Robert Lansing, supplemented by a statement by the latter, all of which was made public here today.

The clear and definite understanding between the United States and Japan that both shall oppose "The acquisition by any government of any special rights or privileges that would affect the independence or territorial integrity of China, or that would deny to the subject or citizens of any country the full enjoyment of equal opportunity in the commerce and industry of China," grows out of the visit of the special diplomatic mission, of which Viscount Ishii was the head, to Washington. This understanding is affirmed in notes exchanged between the two statesmen and bearing the date of Nov. 2.

Japan's earnest desire "To cooperate in every practical way" in the war against Germany is announced by Secretary Lansing, who stated that "complete and satisfactory understanding upon the matter of naval cooperation in the Pacific for the purpose of attaining the common object against Germany and her allies have been reached between the representative of the Imperial Japanese navy, who is attached to the special mission of Japan, and the representative of the United States navy." Details of the scheme of cooperation, Mr. Lansing says, it would be inexpedient to divulge.

Secretary Lansing's note to Viscount Ishii declares that in order to silence mischievous reports it seems expedient publicly to proclaim the desires and intentions of the United States and Japan, that both nations recognize that "territorial propriety creates special relations" and that the United States recognize Japan's special interest in China and particularly in those sections contiguous to Japan; but that the United States "has every confidence in the repeated assurances of the Imperial Japanese government that while geographical position gives Japan such special interests, they have no desire to discriminate against the trade of other nations or to disregard the commercial rights heretofore granted by China in treaties with other powers."

Mr. Lansing asserts that both nations deny all intention to "infringe in any way the independence or the territorial integrity of China" or equal opportunity for commerce and industry in China.

Viscount Ishii, acknowledging Secretary Lansing's note, affirms the position of his government in language identical with that employed by the secretary of state, stating that he does so "under authorization of my government."

Mr. Lansing, in his supplementary statement, says that there has been growing up between the Japanese and American people "a feeling of suspicion" which "if unchecked, promised to develop a serious situation." He declares that this suspicion had attained such proportions that "legitimate commercial and industrial enterprises without ulterior motives were presumed to have political significance, with the result that opposition to these enterprises was aroused in the other country."

That Viscount Ishii has, throughout the conferences "shown a sincerity and candor which dispelled every doubt as to his purpose and brought the two governments into an attitude of confidence toward each other which made it possible to discuss every question with frankness and cordiality" is asserted by Mr. Lansing.

Secretary Lansing expresses confidence that the understanding reached will make for and is essential to that "perpetual international peace" which is the ambition of President Wilson.

The results of the conferences between the ambassador plenipotentiary of Japan and the secretary of state is looked upon in diplomatic and official quarters as a monument to the diplomacy of Lansing, when it is considered that Viscount Ishii was vested with plenary powers, in procuring the affirmation of the "open door" policy. Further it is considered the greatest diplomatic achievement in Secretary Lansing's administration.

Secretary Lansing to Viscount Ishii: "Excellency: I have the honor to communicate herein my understanding of the agreement reached by us in our recent conversations touching the questions of mutual interest to our governments relating to the Republic of China.

"In order to silence mischievous reports that have from time to time been circulated, it is believed by us that a public announcement once more of the desires and intentions shared by our two governments with regard to China is advisable.

"The governments of the United States and Japan recognize that territorial propriety creates special relations between countries, and, consequently, the government of the United States recognizes that Japan has special interests in China, particularly in the part to which her possessions are contiguous.

"The territorial sovereignty of China, nevertheless, remains unimpaired and the government of the United States has every confidence in the repeated assurances of the Imperial Japanese government that while geographical position gives Japan such special interests, they have no desire to discriminate against the trade of other nations or to disregard the commercial rights heretofore granted by China in treaties with other powers.

"The governments of the United States and Japan deny that they have any purpose to infringe in any way the independence or territorial integrity of China and they declare, furthermore, that they always adhere to the principle of the so-called 'open door' or equal opportunity for commerce and industry in China.

"Moreover, they mutually declare that they are opposed to the acquisition by any government of any special rights or privileges that would affect the independence or territorial integrity of China or that would deny to the subjects or citizens of any country the full enjoyment of equal opportunity in the commerce and industry of China.

"I shall be glad to have your Excellency confirm this understanding of the agreement reached by us.

"Accept, excellency, the renewed assurance of my highest consideration.

(Signed) "ROBERT LANSING."

Viscount Ishii's reply: "Sir: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your note of today, communicating to me your understanding of the agreement reached by us in our recent conversation touching the question of mutual interest to our governments relating to the Republic of China.

"I am happy to be able to confirm to you, under authorization of my government, the understanding in question set forth in the following terms."

Here Viscount Ishii quotes Secretary Lansing's note verbatim beginning with second paragraph "I take this opportunity to convey to you, sir, the assurances of my highest consideration."

Plenipotentiary of Japan on special mission."

The announcement of the exchange of notes was accompanied by the following statement from the secretary of state: "Viscount Ishii and the other Japanese commissioners who are now on their way back to their country have performed a service to the United States as well as to Japan which is of the highest value."

"There had unquestionably been growing up between the peoples of the two countries a feeling of suspicion as to the motives inducing the activities of the other in the Far East, a feeling which, if unchecked, promised to develop a serious situation. Rumors and reports of improper intentions were increasing and were more and more believed. Legitimate commercial and industrial enterprises without ulterior motives were presumed to have political significance with the result that opposition to those enterprises was aroused in the other country."

"The attitude of constraint and doubt thus created was fostered and encouraged by the campaign of falsehood which for a long time had been adroitly and secretly carried on by Germans, whose government as a part of its foreign policy desired especially to so alienate this country and Japan that it would be at the chosen time no difficult task to cause a rupture of their good relations. Unfortunately there were people in both countries many of whom were entirely honest in their beliefs, who accepted every false rumor as true, and added the German propaganda by declaring that their own government should prepare for the conflict, which they asserted was inevitable, that the interests of the two nations in the Far East were hostile, and that every activity of the other country in the Pacific had a sinister purpose."

"Fortunately this distrust was not so general in either the United States or Japan as to affect the friendly relations of the two governments, but there is no doubt that the feeling of suspicion was increasing and the untrue reports were receiving more and more credence in spite of the earnest efforts which were made on both sides of the Pacific to counteract a movement which would jeopardize the ancient friendship of the two nations.

"The visit of Viscount Ishii and his colleagues has accomplished a great change of opinion in this country. By frankly denouncing the evil influences which have been at work, by openly proclaiming that the policy of Japan is not one of aggression and by declaring that there is no intention to take advantage commercially or industrially of the special relation to China created by geographical position, the representatives of Japan have cleared the atmosphere of suspicion which had been so carefully spread by our enemies and by misguided or over-zealous people in both countries."

In a few days the propaganda of years has been undone, and both nations are now able to see how near they came to being led into the trap which had been skillfully set for them.

"Throughout the conferences which have taken place Viscount

Ishii has shown a sincerity and candor which dispelled every doubt as to his purpose and brought the two governments into an attitude of confidence toward each other which made it possible to discuss the subjects in such a spirit and with the mutual desire to remove every possible cause of controversy the negotiations were marked by a sincerity and good will which from the first insured their success.

"The principal result of the negotiations was the mutual understanding which was reached as to the principles governing the policies of the two governments in relation to China. This understanding is formally set forth in the notes exchanged and now made public. The statements in the notes require no explanation. They not only contain a reaffirmation of the 'Open door' policy, but introduce a principle of non-interference with the sovereignty and territorial integrity of China, which, generally applied, is essential to perpetual international peace, as clearly declared by President Wilson, and which is the very foundation also of pan-Americanism as interpreted by this government.

"The removal of doubts and suspicions and the mutual declaration of the new doctrine as to the far east would be enough to make the visit of the Japanese commission to the United States historic and memorable, but it accomplished a further purpose, which is of special interest to the world at this time, in expressing Japan's earnest desire to cooperate with this country in waging war against the German government. The discussions, which covered the military, naval and economic activities to be employed with due regard to relative resources and ability, showed the same spirit of sincerity and candor which characterized the negotiations resulting in the exchange of notes.

"At the present time it is inexpedient to make public the details of these conversations, but it may be said that this government has been gratified by the assertions of Viscount Ishii and his colleagues that their government desires to do their part in the suppression of Prussian militarism and were eager to cooperate in every practical way to that end. It might be added, however, that complete and satisfactory understandings upon the matter of naval co-operation in the Pacific for the purpose of attaining the common object against Germany and her allies have been reached between the representative of the Imperial Japanese navy, who is attached to the special mission of Japan, and the representative of the United States navy.

"It is only just that to say that the success which has attended the intercourse of the Japanese commission with American officials and with private persons as well, is due in large measure to the personality of Viscount Ishii, the head of the mission. The natural reserve and hesitation, which are not unusual in negotiations of a delicate nature, disappeared under the influence of his open friendliness, while his frankness won the confidence and good will of all. It is doubtful if a representative of a different temper could in so short a time have done as much as Viscount Ishii to place on a better and firmer basis the relations between the United States and Japan. Through him the American people have gained a new and higher conception of the reality of Japan's friendship for the United States which will be mutually beneficial in the future.

"Viscount Ishii will be remembered in this country as a statesman of high attainments, as a diplomat with a true vision of international affairs, and as a genuine and outspoken friend of America."

LIEUTENANT HERO OF TRENCH BATTLE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

With the American Forces in France, Nov. 6.—A young American Lieutenant is the hero of the first real clash between German and American troops, which resulted in the capture of twelve Americans and the killing of three Americans and two Frenchmen and the wounding of four Americans.

This young officer bravely tried to rush through the barrage fire. The Germans were dropping back of the American position to get reinforcements for the attack he knew was coming. He had not gone more than a short distance when a shell exploded near him hurled him to the earth. He got up and continued going even though shells were dropping all around him. A second shell exploded almost against him knocked him down a second time. He got up for the third time and tried to pierce through the rain of steel. He stumbled along in a semi-conscious condition until he was sent down for the third time, unconscious. He is suffering from shell shock but is expected to recover soon.

The German attack occurred on a sector of the front where the two first line trenches are about 800 yards apart. It is believed that the Germans had planned the attack for several days and that they knew that Americans occupied the trenches against which their movement was directed. The enemy took advantage of a heavy mist and rainfall in the early hours of Saturday morning to make the attack.

The relief had just gone in when the Germans opened a heavy bombardment. They sent shell after shell into the first line trenches and began dropping at the same time a heavy barrage fire in a horse shoe curve in back and around the side of the section of the trench they planned to attack. The barrage fire made it impossible for reinforcements to be brought up. At the same time the German began shelling the barbed wire in front of the American trenches with demolition shells. Wide paths were blown through the wire entanglements by the German shells, making way for the advancing German troops.

Despite the fact that it was their first time under heavy shell fire, the Americans held their posts like veterans, according to the report of the French divisional commander. Even though realizing that they would probably be greatly outnumbered, owing to the fact that no reinforcements could be brought up, the Americans kept peering over the top of the trench while shells dropped around, watching for the Germans that they were sure would come.

The artillery fire on the first line trenches suddenly lifted and through the holes in the barbed wire entanglements poured German soldiers. The German party far outnumbered the handful of Americans holding the trench. It was said later that there were 201 Germans in the force. American rifles cracked and the American machine guns spluttered forth streams of lead but the Germans, by sheer weight of numbers, pressed forward and literally smothered the American attack. The Germans jumped into the trench where real hand-to-hand fighting took place. The Americans fought bravely with knives, revolvers and bayonets, but numbers told and the Germans, who used hand grenades, overcame them.

The exact details of the struggle in the trench have not been learned but the French commander reported that the Americans struggled bravely against superior forces and that the German casualties are unknown. Three German rifles and several German knives were found in the trench after the raiders finally were driven off. It is believed that the Germans carried away both their dead and wounded.

It is understood that the Americans wounded are suffering mostly from shattered arms and legs. The first rumors of the attack reached American headquarters Saturday night. The arrival of the German report Sunday claiming that American prisoners had been taken, stirred the American soldiers as nothing else has since they arrived.

The Americans are fairly aching to get a chance to retaliate. The Americans who were killed will be buried in a little cemetery near a certain divisional headquarters.

CONSCRIPT WRITES CAPT. HORNBECK

Captain B. J. Hornbeck, chairman of the exemption board of Division No. 1 of Ulster county, has received from Fred Hoffman, at Overeen Casual Camp, the following letter:

My Dear Captain Hornbeck: Well, here I am waiting to cross the pond, just five weeks after leaving Kingston. They say we will be "over there" within three weeks. Grant Brinner and Emmit and myself are the only Kingston boys here. We offered ourselves for foreign service and together with men from New York, New Jersey and Delaware, came over here.

As leave is not allowed for more than 12 hours, it is doubtful if we get up to Kingston again until "the war is over."

Hoping to be on the other side soon and wishing you and all the other members of the board all success, I am, FRED HOFFMAN.

We are quartered in tents here.

ELECTION DAY IS VERY QUIET

Election Day in this city was unusually quiet. The weather was fair and in the uptown wards alone voting was heavy during the morning and by noon more than one-half the vote had been cast. Automobiles were in use at every polling place to convey aged or infirm voters to the polls and also to go after those living a long distance away or whose business is in another part of the city or out of town.

The presence of women watchers at each polling place was not an innovation, women watchers having been at the polling places two years ago when the suffrage amendment also was voted on. During the afternoon a number of women were engaged in hunting up voters and in looking over the voting lists. They went from ward to ward, getting reports and although apparently hopeful that suffrage would receive more support than it did two years ago, they seemed to be prepared to receive adverse reports.

ITALIANS FALL BACK FARTHER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rome, Nov. 6.—Portions of the mountainous area along the Tagliamento river have been evacuated by the Italian forces in order to establish a battle line, the war office announced today.

The enemy pushed toward the middle and lower courses along the Tagliamento river, the announcement said.

The mountainous area mentioned is that part where the foothills skirt the Tagliamento river, leading almost due south from the Carnic Alps.

The German thrust southward would indicate the enemy is attempting a flanking movement in that direction as well as from the north. The sector referred to in the retreat undoubtedly means the Pinzano region.

MARTIN HAD A NARROW ESCAPE

James Martin, Newly Appointed Police Officer, Nearly Drowned in Rondout Creek Monday Night.

James Martin of No. 5 Spruce street had a narrow escape from drowning Monday evening when he fell into the Rondout creek, and was sinking for the third time when a life preserver was thrown him which he seized. Mr. Martin is employed as a nightwatchman at the Brewster plant in Port Ewan. There is a scow in the creek which is used by the men to get across to the other side. In snoring off from the dock Martin lost his balance and tumbled into the water. He was unable to swim and but for the appearance of several men on the scene would undoubtedly have drowned. Mr. Martin is one of the newly appointed members of the police force and will assume his duties the first of December.

Self-Support for Beginners Is Policy of Big Factory

"HOME OF THE PETER SCHUYLER" KINGSTON'S OPPORTUNITY FOR MALE AND FEMALE EMPLOYMENT.

Lucrative Wages Give Boys and Girls Self-Confidence and Independence When They Leave Home While Learning to Earn Men's Salaries.

By The Freeman's (no longer Mysterious) Mr. Fox.

That boys and girls who are wage earners are large subscribers to the Liberty Loan Bonds is proven by one example in this city, where it is shown that they rank with men industrially and in capacity of earnings in G. W. Van Slyke & Horton's Kingston cigar factory. The boys and girls working there subscribed $5,750.00 to the first Liberty Bonds loan and $4,250.00 to the second Liberty Bond loan.

It is also true that the employees in the factory never did better financially than they are doing at the present time. The savings among them in 1916 amounted to $14,000.00.

This business of fifty years standing, made famous by its superior cigars, notably "The Peter Schuyler," brought into Kingston ten years ago the modern economic policies that are giving the boys and girls and men and women unusual opportunity for self-support. Steady work with earning capacity that enables the "girl just from home" and thrown on her own resources, to live well and lay aside part of her earnings for a "rainy day," enjoying fair and considerate treatment by her employers, is only one of the advantages that give the employees of this factory a spirit of self respect and independence.

While learning the trade at G. W. Van Slyke & Horton's the beginners are paid $6 a week. This insures a good living without depriving them of the moderate expense for plain, common sense recreation. Their time for laying up part of their earnings need not be expected until they become regular, fully instructed cigar makers. Girls and boys, young men and young women, are employed here who while being taught the trade on the wage always have spare change.

The important advantage obtained in this unusual offer of G. W. Van Slyke & Horton is that "the girl at home" looking for the chance to get employment somewhere, though pressed by immediate necessities and unable to support herself under ordinary conditions required to get into a paying job, has the way opened to her at this factory to profitably and honestly free herself from the drudgery of house work.

Many young men and women drawn into Kingston by this offer had been earning money in the small shops and stores in the country, and it has proven a great boon to them that while learning to become profitable wage earners they are paid living wages and are at once placed in an independent condition.

"The girl or boy who tries" will soon become a skilled operative in this factory drawing from $12 to $16 weekly. If either of them proves incapable, or at least satisfied that this employment will not suit them, they have the satisfaction of withdrawing without having wasted their time or having been forced into debt while trying to learn, as would have been the case if they had had to serve the apprenticeship under former conditions that gave little or no pay during the apprentice period.

Another advantage distinctively a part of this factory's policy, is that once the beginner has "found oneself" there is steady employment. In this factory there is always room at the top and always an opening for other beginners, since its productions are widely distributed, are of the better average in quality and the shop gives employment the year around.

As a reward for thrift a bonus of 10 per cent of each operative's weekly pay for perfect attendance and good workmanship is added to the regular earnings at the end of stipulated periods. This serves the double purpose to induce operatives to work steadily and do superior work, and results in enforced savings of earnings to their financial advantage by which they acquire the habits of regularity and thrift that stick through life.

The up-to-date conditions in this factory for health, security and comfort cost this company more than the expense of running many of the old time cigar factories.

This, the largest single factory building in Kingston was planned and constructed with large air space in the rooms; lighted by an abundance of windows; a modern ventilating system that gives the operatives pure air and no draughts; short and easy communications between the entrances and exits and from floor to floor. Full modern equipments for extinguishing incipient fires, and at the worst checking them to let everybody get out, with the efficiency of the up-to-date fire drills that prevent panics in time of real danger, emptying the building quickly and orderly, eliminate the last possible chance of fatality in case of fire.

One of the most important of economic and hygiene conditions established in this factory is the care that is given the employees—the protection they get, and the relief provided for them in case of illness or accident. No danger is imminent in this factory from machinery, but an accident common with a minor employment in which case medical attendance is at once provided.

A matron in this factory gives her exclusive attention to the comfort and well being of the girls employed here. This matron is a woman of years of discretion and good judgment, a mother with children of her own who is naturally sympathetic and looks after the sick under her charge with tender care. On complaint of a girl the matron promptly gives her personal attention in the Rest Room where if any simple first aid remedies are required they are at hand. The matron serves light food along in the forenoon which is greatly appreciated by the employees, especially those who may have hurried to the factory without their breakfast, and this welcomed refreshment is twice served later in the day.

The Christmas fund maintained in this factory is very popular.

Out of all these popular innovations, many of them introduced in Kingston by G. W. Van Slyke & Horton, there has grown up a steady reliable class of employees whose earnings are a great asset to the business life of the city.—Advertisement.

More Space and Conveniences To Select Coats and Suits

Also Improvements in Other Departments in Eighmey's Big Downtown Dry Goods Store.

By The Freeman's (Once Mysterious) Mr. Fox.

When you have seen the smart display of women's, misses' and children's coats at Eighmey's you will then understand why so many new and stunning patterns are being worn so early in the autumn and winter season of 1917-18 by attractively gowned women. The new shades in browns are pleasingly attractive. The Oxford grays are especially popular for practical, every-day wear; the rich black plush with fur trimmings is being worn for dress occasions and the wearing quality is unexcelled. There are large varieties of children's coats in dark mixtures, plain browns, greens and navies.

Eighmey enlarged this department for coats and suits to give better arrangement of them in this display and greater accommodation to shoppers. The unusual admittance of daylight for which this store is well constructed makes shopping in it easier; and in selecting shades good daylight is indispensable. Here the customer is sure the color selected is what it is expected to be.

One of the special attractions in Eighmey's new lines this season which elicit the admiration of visitors, to this, the Big Downtown Dry Goods Store, are bath robes for men, women and children. Eighmey's entire line of bath robes are the Reg- ister Co.'s make, which he always handles. They are made from selected Indian blanket designs with the most attractive blending of colors.

in plaids and figures and would make a swell Christmas present. Your boys in camp would appreciate them as "just the thing to throw on any old time" when they are resting.

Packages intended for soldiers at European ports must be mailed by November 15 to insure arrival by Christmas.

An order on Eighmey from the head of the family to deliver one of those attractive floor sized rugs at the house for Christmas would surely delight everyone there, especially the woman of the home who takes a personal interest in house furnishings for Christmas.

Eighmey displays a wider range of attractive rugs in new patterns this year than ever. They are suspended on the novel "Best" Rug Rack, which opens like the pages of a book and permits you to rest while studying the designs.

Ladies! You're reminded in conjunction with the ready-to-wear department Eighmey shows you a most attractive line of ladies' blouses and waists displayed conveniently on special sales tables and also most up-to-date corsets in which will be found the latest models adapted to all figures in the well known R. & G. the C. B. a la Spirite and Thompson Glove Fitting makes.

You will be assisted and advised in making selections as to the best models adapted to your forms and handles. They are made from selected Indian blanket designs with the most attractive blending of colors.

WANT "ADS" PRINTED AT THE SMALL COST OF CENT-A-WORD

NURSES GRADUATE TOMORROW EVENING

All members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Kingston City Hospital are urged to make a special effort to attend the graduating exercises of the nurses training school at St. Mary's Hall on Wednesday evening at quarter after eight.

It is only by a personal attendance at the first formal graduation of the school that interest in the work of the hospital may be manifested.

This is one of the greatest of our public institutions, and since the opening of the big modern addition to the building there has been shown among the people of the city a remarkable appreciation of the comforts and conveniences here put at the disposal of the sick.

Our hospital in the perfection of its equipment compares favorably with any of its size in the state. The people of Kingston and the county have contributed generously to the building fund, and also to the support of any entertainment ever put on for its benefit. It is hoped by the board of managers that they will give evidence of their interest by a large attendance at these exercises on Wednesday.

The address of the evening will be delivered by Judge Clearwater, whose name as a speaker always assures a worth-while evening. Dr. A. A. Stern will read a short history of the hospital and training school, from the time of its opening twenty-five years ago. Judge Betts, president of the board of managers, will present the diplomas to the graduates. Muller's orchestra will furnish music.

All the members of the staff will be present, and as many of the graduates as are in Kingston will be seated on the stage in uniform. The hospital has graduated forty-two young women since the training school was started, but of course many of them are no longer in the city.

At the close of the program the graduating class will be glad to receive the personal congratulations of their friends at the platform, in a most informal reception.

SOCIETY NOTES.

D. of L. Card Party.

The Daughters of Isabella are making arrangements for a monster card party and dance to be held in R. of C. Hall on Tuesday evening, November 13. This is the second of a series of card parties to be given this season for the benefit of the charity fund.

Monday Club.

The Monday Club met at the home of Mrs. Joseph Fowler this week. The paper for the day was given by Mrs. Henry Van Hoesen, her subject being "George Bernard Shaw." The paper was listened to with close attention and called forth considerable discussion. Next week the club will meet with Mrs. Davis at her home on Johnston avenue.

Soiskanshade Club.

The Soiskanshade Club held an informal meeting at the home of Mrs. Grover Lasher on Lucas avenue on Monday afternoon. Readings from Shakespeare were given by Miss Dorothy Leighton and Mrs. Godfrey, after which the club enjoyed a "Shakespearean Hunt," which proved both entertaining and instructive. Next week the club will meet with Mrs. Godfrey at her home, No. 28 Liberty street.

Shoemaker-Wolf.

Miss Lena Wolf of this city and Elmer Shoemaker of Port Ewen were married September 20 in the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church on Livingston street, by the pastor, the Rev. F. P. Schroeder. Mr. and Mrs. Shoemaker will reside in Schenectady where the groom holds a responsible position. Both he and his bride have a host of friends who wish them a long and prosperous married life.

Shurter-Maines.

Miss Minnie Maines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Maines of Greenkill avenue and Curtis R. Shurter of this city were quietly married on Sunday last at 2:30 o'clock at St. John's rectory on Green street, by the pastor, the Rev. J. I. Blair Larned. The bride wore a handsome costume of blue Georgette crepe trimmed with mesaline and carried a bouquet. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Miller. Mr. and Mrs. Shurter, who have many friends in this city, who wish them a very happy married life, will make their home with Mrs. Shurter's parents at their home on Greenkill avenue.

Sunshine Society.

The Sunshine Society met on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Clarence Hendricks on Washington avenue. Two grave problems, in view of the greatly increased cost of living were carefully considered by the society members. Mrs. W. Scott Gillespie, president, presiding. It was finally voted that the society would have to give up the distribution of milk, as formerly carried on by them among those in need, but it was also voted that the organization should keep up the assistance in paying rents, which it has given for so long, especially where old people are concerned. No new cases will be taken up. The Freeman was asked to express publicly thanks to all who have contributed to the work of the society during the summer and fall, and especial mention was made of gifts of flannel under-clothing for men, from Mrs. William Brink of Katrine; a new quilt from the Home Department of the Katrine Church; children's clothing from Mrs. F. G. Schmidt; and also clothing collected by Miss Emily Haysradt.

The society would, at this time, ask for a man's overcoat and suit of clothing. Any one having such clothing to give, will please notify the president, Mrs. Gillespie. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Brodhead at The Huntington.

Symphony Benefit Concert.

The Symphony Benefit Concert given by friends of the Symphony Orchestra of Kingston at the high school auditorium Monday evening drew a gratifying large audience and proved to be, on the whole, a very pleasing concert. Perhaps more enthusiasm would have been aroused on the part of the audience if the program, which was splendid from a purely artistic viewpoint, had happened to be not quite so pathetic and tragic, for today we all feel the need of cheer and stimulation rather than an added sense of tragic portent.

The program opened with "America," played by the orchestra, which while it did excellent work in each number, could not but show the effects of having lost some fourteen of its older and more experienced members, all of whom are now serving their country. In spite of that fact, the orchestral numbers gave promise of a splendid future for the orchestra if it can be encouraged and will continue to work indefatigably and earnestly under Conductor Muller.

Following the playing of our national hymn, the orchestra played the weirdly beautiful march from "Leonore," by Raff, very effectively. This was followed by a group of piano numbers by Charles Gilbert Spross, of New York; "Nocturne" by Caspar Cul, full of grace and charm; "Melodie" by Rachmaninoff, a number full of beauty and played with a splendid richness of tone and artistic interpretation; and "Etude Heroique" by Leschetizki, very brilliant and showing Mr. Spross's finished technique in a remarkable manner. He always delights Kingston audiences.

Miss Ellerbrook, who has a clear, sweet, admirably trained contralto voice, made her first appearance in the arts, "My Heart," at Thy Sweet Voice," from Saint Saens's "Samson and Delilah," wherein the singer gave this dramatic number a peculiarly pathetic presentation.

Two orchestral numbers, "Danse Orientale," by Lubomirsky, full of oriental coloring and rhythm; and "Serenade Espagnole," by Bizet, were admirably played by the orchestra, even though both numbers call for that peculiar rhythmic effect and shading which is often most difficult for the amateur musician than a more classical composition. The orchestra and Conductor Muller were given a cordial reception at each of their performances.

Undoubtedly Miss Ellerbrook's best number, full of dramatic appeal and showing an especial excellence of technique was "The Cry of Rachel," by Summer Salter.

The last group of numbers played by Mr. Spross were a Russian "Rhapsodie," by Dohnanyi, a characteristic national composition; "Barcarolle," by Mr. Spross, full of grace and characteristic touches belonging to this accomplished composer; both numbers being played with rare musicianship; and the scintillating number, "Paraphrase on 'Weiner Blut,'" by Strauss which called forth especially enthusiastic applause, and to which he responded with an encore number.

Another lovely but pathetic number, was "Little Boy Blue," by Buckingham Joice, sung by Miss Ellerbrook, charmingly. She responded to the applause given her by singing very pleasingly Mr. Spross's "Jean," and another pretty encore. Miss Ellerbrook was especially fortunate in having such an artistic accompanist as Mr. Spross.

The program closed with "The Star Spangled Banner," played by the orchestra, sung by Miss Ellerbrook; the audience joining in the chorus wherein a splendid patriotic enthusiasm was shown by all. Mr. Metzger is president of the organization which, composed of William Davis Hawk, secretary; Charles R. O'Connor treasurer; P. J. R. Clarke, George Washburn, Charles W. Walton, David Burgevin, Thomas J. Comerford, Aaron Cohen, Harry P. Dodge, C. V. A. Decker, Walter Van Steenburgh, Howard Hendricks, G. A. Hart and Arthur G. Carr, has undertaken the establishment of the orchestra on a permanent basis.

Emanuel Metzger, the president of the society, introduced Judge Clearwater, as a man whom Kingston delighted to honor, who not only was interested in his profession but in the cause of Art and Letters, and of that branch of the fine arts which related to music. The judge was received with a round of applause. He said that it was pleasant to learn that the cause of Art and Letters, particularly that of music, was not altogether forgotten in these perilous times, when the thoughts of men and women centered upon war. However Kingston might compare with Boston in musical attainment, the Symphony Society far surpassed Boston in patriotic inspiration. Dr. Muck, the leader of the Boston Symphony, declined to play the Star Spangled Banner upon the frivolous plea that it was neither classical or musical. He did not pretend to determine its status as a musical production, but it was pre-eminently the patriotic anthem of America, and he noticed by the program that there was no hesitation upon the part of the Kingston Symphony both to play and sing it.

The judge had been a patron of the old Philharmonic organized by the late Howard Osterhout, an ardent lover of music. In 1872, and spasmodically during the last forty-five years Kingston had had musical associations more or less adequately supported. He thought it would be well to know what had been accomplished by our own Symphony Society, which organized in 1912, gave its first concert on the 22nd of April of that year; it now had forty-seven members; twelve of its members who had received their musical education through its efforts were occupying responsible positions. Five were in the 10th Regiment band; three in the Naval Reserve band; two in the Brooklyn Navy Yard band; Mason Cline, born in his own beloved Twaitskill, was the concert master in the Birth of the Nation; Miss Swartz was leading a large and prosperous ladies' symphony orchestra at Portland, Oregon, and two of the young men in the orchestra had passed their physical and mental examination and were awaiting the call to arms. This, said the judge, is no mean record and the organization which had produced a result of this character in five years, deserved generous support.

Judge Clearwater said that it might not be amiss for him to say that notwithstanding the reckless aspersions against Kingston by ill-informed persons with an evil taste for slander, he having lived here longer than most people, and having had many opportunities to compare Kingston with other communities, gave it as his deliberate and mature judgment that in morals, in manners, in all the virtues and graces of a refined society, Kingston was the equal if not the superior of the vast majority of municipalities in this or any European country. The women of Kingston had done more than their share towards giving it that intellectual impulse which sometimes he thought it needed. The men perhaps were a trifle too deeply engrossed in the pursuit of the material, but when the need came in patriotism, in philanthropy, in charity, in kindness of heart and in all that tended to soften the asperities of life both the women and men of Kingston ranked high and its detractors should unhesitatingly be condemned with an austerity that would not be forgotten. He said that for the last one hundred and forty-one years, and since we had a flag, wherever the flag had gone Kingston had followed, and wherever the flag would go Kingston would be road to follow.

The judge spoke with a mixture of gravity and humor, and his remarks frequently were interrupted with the heartiest applause.

Once a Spanish Highway. "The Spanish Main" was a name formerly given to the southern portion of the Caribbean sea and the neighboring coast, as it embraced the route traversed by the Spanish treasure ships from Mexico, Central America, and the northern shores of South America. These waters were once a Spanish highway, but the name has no significance now.

HARD PROBLEMS FOR FARMER

Saving of Time and Labor is One of Most Important—Location of Buildings Helps.

Farm management problems are among the most difficult which the farmer has to solve. Each crop grown is a business by itself, and each class of live stock involves its own peculiar difficulties. It is the task of the farmer to select and fit these business problems together so that they will work out without friction and with profit to the farmer. Logically the farmer is fast coming to be classed among the great business men of our country.

One of the most important things that the farmer has to consider is the saving of time and labor, and in considering this he should consider the location of fences, gates and buildings. By properly locating these he can save much time and energy in performing the regular work on the farm.

On every new farm fences are being built, new buildings are being put up and new adjustments of fields are constantly being made; consequently it is well for every farmer to carry in mind, or even to diagram, plans for his farm outlay much in advance of his actually handling the work.

Whatever That Is.

Armed with a hooked bill resembling a hawk, with a spread of wing as big as a good-sized eagle and equipped with long legs, which he carries straight behind him, a bird which Alan Irish, of Sabino, Me., says is a zypunkquiphper and is rare in that vicinity, has been seen frequently near Sabino.

WORSE THAN BEASTS.

The United States Government has made public several letters written by German soldiers to Ambassador Gerard as "the representative of a Christian State," asking if something could not be done to stop the systematic slaughter of prisoners by the Germans. Naturally, the writers of the letters did not give their names, but the documents bear internal evidence of genuineness. It appears that great masses of Russian prisoners were disarmed and then slaughtered by machine guns under the pretext that it was necessary to reduce the number of consumers of food. One writer says that "five men and one officer on our side went mad from those heart-rending cries, but most of my comrades and the officers joked as the unarmed and helpless Russians screamed for mercy while they were being suffocated in the swamps and shot down." For some reason French prisoners are as a rule spared, but many groups of Englishmen have been massacred, and doubtless a like fate is in store for captured Americans.

Even a beast will stop fighting when his enemy submits. These Germans are evidently lower than beasts. It is amazing that only a half dozen of them were made insane by such scenes. Even at this distance the horrible news is enough to unhinge reason. The humane Germans who wrote to Gerard ask that something be done to stop these practices. Something is being done, but it is a slow process. Decency can never prevail on the earth until Germany is humbled. Humanity must be cured of this cancer and cured thoroughly, no matter what the cost may be in lives and money. There have been so-called "holocausts" in the past, but this is the only real thing of that kind in human history.

The activity of German agents in this country has passed the limit of tolerance. There have been too many burnings of food and animals and too much placing of bombs on American transports. Our Government is about to take some drastic action, and it is reported that this action will take the form of requiring all suspected Germans and others to keep one hundred miles away from the seaboard. Let us hope that no such half-way policy will be adopted. There is food to destroy in the interior as well as on the seaboard, and the scattering of these vicious spies would merely scatter their operations and increase the difficulty of catching them. The place for friends of brutal Germany is in prison and in detention camps, or, in some cases, in lunatic asylums. The time has passed for enforcing with rigor the peace time rule that it is better that a hundred guilty persons escape than that one innocent individual suffer. Conditions are different now. It is better that a thousand German sympathizers who are only probably guilty of overt acts be restrained than that one loyal American soldier lose his life through the prolongation of the war.

An American astronomer is quoted as saying that if any other planet in our solar system is inhabited it is Venus rather than Mars, the atmosphere of the latter being only one-seventh as dense as that of our earth, while the former "has an atmosphere as dense now as was that of the earth in prehistoric times, when life in all forms was richest." The average astronomer seems reluctant to admit the possibility of life in any planet except the earth. Doubtless there are planets in our own and the myriads of other solar systems not yet ripened into the conditions necessary to support human life, but it is only reasonable to suppose that the ultimate destiny of every planet is an abode for men, just as an egg, barring accident or interference, is destined to become a bird. It is also reasonable to suppose that vast numbers of the countless planets in the universe are already inhabited by men. For what other reason do planets and solar systems exist, and what conceivable explanation could there be otherwise for such a stupendous waste of energy and material? Some idea of the extent of such a waste of energy and material may be obtained by reflection upon the distance between us and the sun. Sirius, the most beautiful star of the heavens within our view. Astronomers tell us that it is 1,375,000 times as far from us as the sun or our own planetary system, and that for its light to reach us requires 22 years, travelling at the rate of 186,000 miles a second! That is, what we see is not the Sirius of today but of 1895, the ray of light that reaches our eyes having been sent forth from the vast orb in that year. The imagination is literally staggered by the picture, but the reasoning mind is forced to the conclusion that so many myriads of worlds have not been brought into being merely to remain

All sections of the town were represented at this gathering. Organist Campbell of the M. E. Church was in charge of the music. A four-piece orchestra occupied seats on the platform while at least one hundred of Ellenville's best singers occupied the front seats in the hall and led in the singing. Following the singing of the Star Spangled Banner and the prayer, the Rev. J. E. Appleby made some very interesting remarks. Singing of the Battle Hymn of the Republic followed. The Rev. W. S. Maines then introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Howard. As all Ellender county knows well of Mr. Howard as a forceful speaker, he held the Ellenville audience spellbound from start to finish and received during his address and at the end very hearty applause. Singing "Rescue the Perishing" followed, and the Rev. Mr. Maines gave a few excellent remarks. The balance of the estate is given to Maggie Palmatier, who is appointed executrix and trustee. The will was executed August 25, 1884, and witnessed by Solomon G. Carpenter and Alida J. Palmatier. The value of the personal property is $6,000 and there is no real estate. Judge Clearwater appeared for the executrix. Both the father and mother and the three sisters mentioned in the will other than Maggie J. Palmatier died before the testatrix.

The will of Vernon D. Lake of this city, which recently was contested before Judge Hasbrouck and a jury in the supreme court, where it was sustained, was admitted to probate. Virgil B. Van Wagenen, the executor, was represented by Judge Jenkins. The value of the real estate is over $5,000 and the value of the personal property is over $5,000.

A hearing was had before Surrogate Gill on Saturday in the matter of the final accounting of Elizabeth Pratt de Gasquet James, as executrix of the estate of the Count de Amedee de Gasquet James, and a decree was granted. The matter has been before the surrogate's court for several years. An appeal from a decree of the surrogate was carried to the court of appeals, which recently handed down a decision sustaining the surrogate. All of the parties to the litigation are in Europe and most of them are taking some part in the war, either with the French, Italian or Austrian armies or in other branches of the service of those countries. Counsel for the Count de Gasquet James has not heard from her in two years. Charles S. Armstrong of New York city appeared for the countess; other interested parties were represented by J. Noble Hayes, Coudert Brothers, Geller, Ralston & Horan of New York city and by Howard Chipp of this city.

ESOPUS.

Esopus, Nov. 5.—The entertainment given by the Adelphe Club in Elmore Hall on Friday evening last, was a very pleasant affair. Each part was excellently rendered and it would be difficult to decide which was best. Miss Marian Mori, the president of the club, is to be congratulated upon her successful training of the characters as they gave evidence of thoroughness in every movement. Miss Rena Sotting sang a solo entitled "A Little Soldier Boy in Blue," which was very appropriate for these war times. The financial part of the undertaking is most satisfying to those who have worked so faithfully during the past few weeks, and also the church treasurer, J. L. Schultz, $26.50 is the total amount received and as there was very little expense to be deducted it leaves a nice sum for the church treasury.

Arthur Wright is spending a few days at the home of his father, Alfred Wright.

Mrs. Frank Cole and daughter, Elizabeth returned from a visit of two weeks in Jersey City on Saturday.

The prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Edward Ashton this week on Thursday evening. All are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Frank E. Howard came to Esopus on Saturday evening, as previously announced. The audience was not very large, as is usually the case when the subject discussed is "Temperance," but those who were present were much impressed by what Mr. Howard had to say, and those who remained at home missed something well worth hearing. It would seem impossible to the writer—for anyone who listened to his earnest words to go to the polls on election day and vote in favor of license. Rev. and Mrs. P. N. Chase of Kingston accompanied Mr. Howard to Esopus and the former spoke a few forcible words urging the men present to vote against the great evil of the land.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. After the fair was discussed missionary business was taken up and interesting reports were given of the Classical Union at Accord, October 12. Real Friendship.

Honest men and women esteem and value nothing so much in this world as a real friend. Such a one is as if were another self, to whom we impart our most secret thoughts, who partake of our joy, and comforts us in our affliction; add to this, that his company is an everlasting pleasure to us. Translated from the Brahmin.

WAYS WITH APPLES.

Apples are our common fruit, but may be prepared in countless ways for the table.

Apple Jam.—Pare, core and chop a pound of apples, add a pound of sugar, a cupful of chopped raisins, a lemon juice and rind finely chopped, one cupful of chopped raisins, one orange, juice and rind, cook until clear and thick.

Apple Delight.—Two cupfuls of chopped apple cooked in a double boiler with two cupfuls of sugar, one orange, one lemon, the juice and rind finely chopped, one cupful of raisins. Cook one hour, then add a cupful of walnut meats five minutes before it is ready to pour into the glasses. Seal in jelly glasses.

When drying apples, if they are dipped in a mild salt solution before putting to dry they will keep a lighter, better color.

Apple Butter.—Boil new cider until reduced one-half the day before it is to be used. To every four gallons of boiled cider allow a fourth of a bushel of juicy apples, pared, cored and quartered. Fill a large kettle with the cider and add as many apples as can be kept moist. Stir frequently and when the apples are soft beat with a spoon. Cook until dark brown. Have boiled cider to add if it becomes too thick and more apples if too thin. Twenty minutes before removing from the fire add cinnamon and nutmeg to taste. Keep in stone jars.

Apple Catsup.—Pare, core and quarter sour apples, stew as soft as possible in a very little water. Put through a sieve and to each quart add a teaspoonful each of pepper, cloves and mustard, two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon, two medium-sized onions chopped fine, a teaspoonful of salt and a pint of vinegar. Boil one hour, seal tightly.

Apple and Quince.—To every four pounds of apple add a pound of quince unpeeled and cut fine, then cooked with the apple just as for canned apples.

Baked apples filled into sterilized cans and covered with hot syrup makes a most delicious canned apple for winter use.

What Memory Is.

The popular notion that memory is "an association of ideas" is true. Memory, plainly, is not only made up of an association of ideas but also of associated impressions living things receive. Such associations may be due to real and necessary connections such as "iron bar," or to your mental coupling up of such associations as "blue funk," "sweet melody," "pretty girl." Habitual linkage makes the impression firmer, the retention is more durable and a more simple handle whereby the matter can be recalled at will.

WAR GARDENERS

By LOUISE OLIVER.

Fred sniffed uneasily as he turned the corner from the station. There was a faint aroma of something cooking, just what he could not yet tell, but he knew that it came from his own kitchen as surely as he knew that the sun was coming up next morning. As he came nearer he was able to distinguish it more clearly—tomatoes in some process of preservation!

How weary he was of this canning. Night in and night out it seemed for weeks and months past it had been the same thing. He had come home to find Laura overworked, overtired, not dressed, and her temper at the snapping point.

The bungalow as he approached it looked so bare and cheerless that he was almost tempted to turn back to the station and take the first train away from trouble. The porch boxes that last year had been a varicolored mass of foliage and trailing vines were now innocent of so much as a coat of paint; the awnings, so bravely and cheerfully striped a year before, hung stained and despondent from rusty eaves; the flower beds formerly gorged with peonies, big orange poppies, roses and a thousand varieties of everything, and the close-clipped emerald lawn, had given way to a vegetable garden.

But Fred's thoughts were bitter, not so much on account of the war dress of the house as with conditions within. He thought of Mary Ann, that precious family jewel who had come to live with them after the honeymoon, and of the three delectable meals he and Laura had sat down to every day. Mary Ann had left at Christmas. But the worst of the whole thing was Laura's insatiable penchant for canning.

"For goodness sake, can't you ever get through?" Fred had asked despondently the day before, when Laura, up to her neck in pear butter, had set him down to a fried egg and potato on the corner of the kitchen table.

"Goodness, no! There are the tomatoes yet and picadillo and catsup!" Fred did not argue. But he smelled the tomatoes now and predicted another triangular meal in the kitchen.

He was right—almost—except that tonight's meal had but one dimension—a baked potato.

"I was just too tired to cook, Fred," declared Laura wearily.

And then Fred said things he'd never meant to say about coming home to a muddled-up house and a dicker-of-a-looking wife, and flung out of the kitchen and out of the house, climbed on the train, got a seat on the river side, and settled back for his twenty-minute ride.

Suddenly some one leaned forward and said in his ear, "You're getting back early, my boy."

Fred turned in surprise. It was old Mr. Prompter, the senior partner and by long odds the hardest worker in the firm, in spite of his age. He was very rich and lived in a fashionable section two stations beyond Fred.

Fred said something about his dinner, but the old man was deaf, somewhat; moreover, he was changing his seat to talk to Fred.

"I was just thinking," the old man was saying, "that our young men in the office weren't taking the interest in the business they ought to, but it seems I'm wrong. I'm glad to see, my boy, that you are willing to do your bit in this sudden extra pressure of work."

Little by little it was soaking in. Old Mr. Prompter took it for granted that Fred was going back to the office to work like himself. And Fred was too paralyzed to enlighten him.

"After all," thought Fred, "it won't hurt to let him think I'm a little tin angel. I've been after a raise and this may help some. I'll go get a bite somewhere, telephone to Laura and humor the old chap by working like a sailor all evening."

That night Fred came tiptoeing in at twelve o'clock fearful of waking his wife, but she was sitting up sewing beside the living room lamp and looking like his honeymoon wife of last year. She was dressed in a gown he liked and her hair, always lovely, looked prettier than it had for months.

Before Fred could say a word Laura sprang up. "Poor dearie, you must be tired. Come on and sit down and we'll have one of our old parties. I've been an awful person to you lately, and I'm never, never, never going to put up another thing and neglect my house and husband as long as I live, war or no war."

Fred took her in his arms and patted her head tenderly. "Listen, dearie, it's the best investment you ever made. Old Prompter got so worked up when I was the only one who turned up for work that he—you'll never guess it—he took me into the firm. That baked potato meant thousands of dollars a year to us. You'd better put it in alcohol on the mantle."

Champ Has New Version.

Champ Clark has added another classic to the list of proverbs, according to the Washington Star.

It was in the midst of a debate. Representative Gillett of Massachusetts had been guilty of gross exaggeration, by saying: "A bird in the hand is worth seven in the bush."

Champ Clark was not to be outdone. "He thinks so," declared the speaker, "but in my district there is a lawyer who believes a bird in hand is the noblest work of God."

Take Heart.

A fair comparison of the past with the present is very apt to dispense the clouds of despondency. Temporary appearances are often deceptive, but the larger experience of life is the more it goes to confirm the watchful care of Providence.—Buffalo Times.

Just to Work.

Everything that happens to us leaves some trace behind, writes a philosophy. Everything contributes imperceptibly to make us what we are. Yet it is often dangerous to take a strict account of it. For either we grow proud and negligent, or downcast and despondent; and both are equally injurious in their consequences. The surest plans is just to do the nearest task that lies before us.

Senses of Elephant.

The elephant is accredited with having the keenest sense of hearing of any animal. His sense of scent is nearly as remarkable. Young and inexperienced elephants can detect the passing of a man over a trail hours afterward. The elephant is a true Oriental regarding domesticity. Bulls do not habitually go in company with the cows, old bulls especially holding themselves aloof and exclusive from the female of the species.

Ladies—Measure His Head!

A phrenologist writes: "Heads wearing hats 6 1/2 and smaller, or being less than 21 inches in circumference, can never be powerful. Between 19 inches and twenty inches heads are invariably very weak, and no lady should think of marrying a man with a head less than 20 inches in circumference. People with heads under 19 inches are mentally deficient, and with heads under 18 inches invariably idiotic."

Prohibits Use of Images.

The Koran prohibits the use of images and symbols in the religious ceremonies of the strict Turks, or the internal decoration of the temples and mosques, the rule being so strict as not to permit the mural or civic decoration of the greatest generals or other distinguished persons. The adoption of the crescent by the Turks as a national emblem is an oddity which has so far remained unexplained.

DURVEA WAR RELIEF WORK IN FRANCE

Head of the Durvea War Relief in Paris Writes of Scenes at and Near the Front.

The following letter from Mrs. John D. Schoonmaker of this city, transmitting two other letters descriptive of work in France that has been aided by Kingston people, has been received by The Freeman:

To the Editor of The Kingston Freeman,

Dear Sir: Will you kindly print the two letters which I'm enclosing and may I through your columns thank all those who have contributed to the work which I am sending to the Durvea War Relief.

Yours very sincerely,

ALBERTA B. SCHOONMAKER.

The letters referred to follow:

Yesterday I went to glorious Verdun! Words fail me! The world never saw such a stupendous monument to human endurance and courage.

The Military Commandant, Dehay, was more than kind, he took us through the miles of ruined streets, where no living creature stirred, and one sees half a ruined wall with its memory of luxurious homes, where weeds grow in the drawing-room, and birds sing in the deserted gardens, among nature's eternal resurrection of beauty. This vast citadel which withstood German might is more impressive than a battlefield. Huge bombs still fall, and each day takes its toll, while the serene cemetery in the field spreads and spreads, and the blood-red poppies grow from the graves of those brave men, as though proving that their very sentence was drawn from those quiet hearts to give us the message: "I am the Resurrection and the Life." Beg your bit of America to prove their valor that it may share in their glory.

This depot cares for the war widows and their children who come here by hundreds, winning from the unaccustomed charity, the babies, blue-lipped from poor nourishment, and the terror to which they were born. If only once, for once would be enough, those beautifully dressed and kindly women at home could see these they would spend themselves in very pity. Three years have they borne such suspense and disaster as the world has never known, and now it is "up to us" to share a minute part of the struggle. Oh! how I beg you, with all the earnestness of which I am capable, to give, give, give, as never before, for the coming winter we contemplate for them with fear. France is fighting with supreme determination for victory, and when one contemplates what she has paid, one feels that all one has is not enough to give.

And so I beg brazenly and without shame. I know how really hard you work, but remember, you work in comfort and plenty! You will never be hungry or see your house a cindered ruin, or those dear to you in their old age bereft of everything but sorrow. The immensity of this tragedy is beyond description. Therefore, I ask of you one thing, wherever you go, whomsoever you speak with, beg, ask them to deny themselves a theater ticket, a box of cigarettes, and send the money here. It will literally save lives in this fair land of France to which we of America owe such a debt of gratitude.

NINA LARREY DURVEA.

September 30, 1917.

Mrs. Durvea's work is almost entirely among the refugees. A soldier will never starve and a soldier will never go naked, the government sees to that; but the government cannot and does not look after the civil population and until our men are fighting in France that can be our part of the job.

11, rue Louis-le-Grand, Paris.

August 15, 1917.

My dear Miss French:

I cannot tell you how touched and happy I am at the news of your splendid work and that of those with you at Stockbridge. You are a wonder!

I will tell you exactly where everything you send will go—straight. Two nights ago I got back from Roye (Somme) just back of the battle-line beyond Neoyons. The government has given us a whole Canton to "do" and after shipping up there by sealed cars 60,000 pounds of garden and household utensils, food and clothing and a great Moline motor-tractor plough, we (four of us) went up and opened a depot at Roye in a vast masonry hall which had been headquarters of the German Staff. Rain drips through the bomb-shattered roof and five German prisoners assist us in our exceedingly strenuous labors. Then the commandant, after a vigorous search, gave us a wee house, which the German prisoners scraped free of German filth, disinfected and turned over to us. Then it was up to four American women to prove that miracles can be wrought. We painted it, all ourselves, from top to bottom, papered walls, got together bits of furniture from among the ruins, made tables out of cases, portieres from sheets, and on the eighth evening invited the commandant to dinner, with candles stuck in bottles and American baked beans for the "plat de resistance."

We have a bomb-proof shelter beside the door and oiled cotton in place of bullet-broken windows and the first night a bomb dropped in the Indian Camp near Roye and killed three men.

Voilà! for the gay side of the picture. There is tragedy back of it. Every able-bodied being was carried away by the Huns in carts, standing like cattle, leaving only old-age, childhood and illness behind. These were driven out into the fields while their homes were pillaged and burned and their wells poisoned. Then they were allowed to return to the still hot ashes and cold to live. Now? It is to such desolation that all your workers things will go, for we never have enough. We go from one wrecked hamlet to another in our camion, and unearth these dazed, dumo creatures from their holes, carrying every comfort and moral support we can muster. Their roses are cut down as were their roses and berries; their pretty gardens boast more of a crop of shells than anything else. The whole region is grotesque in its utter destruction. The mayor of Roye, Monsieur Manoron, owned one of the show farms of France. He saw his wife carried off, his 34 horses taken, his splendid buildings burned, his crops destroyed or taken. German officers' wives come in person and steal his wife's clothing and silver. He now lives in a wooden shed in the court of his former home; sixty-eight years old, ruined! One of thousands. We all send you our warmest thanks. Tell those kind workers for me to give and work and pity as never before; the coming winter is going to be a tragedy, for the civilians especially. Don't please forget them, or us, one moment. Try please! to get as much MONEY as you can to buy supplies over here, as the Red Cross, as things now are, say they cannot deliver to us any supplies for some time as they haven't enough ships. That is a blow, and we can only count on the generosity of American hearts and pockets to help us through the winter.

Sincerely and gratefully

NINA LARREY DURVEA.
